

A Little Bit of Someday: Music and lyrics by Brittany Jean

There's a magic show in the sky
Known as the Northern Lights
And I want to see them shine
Someday before I die
There's a canyon in the West
6,000 feet at its deepest
Shouldn't be hard to find
Someday before I die

But today the willows call my name
In the pages of a book—I'm far away
Sweet pines and flowers on the air
There's a little bit of someday right here

There's a tree that's called the redwood
Through every storm it's stood
See how tall, how high they grow
Someday before I die
Rocky Mountains in the fall
With golden trees that call me
I'll build a home and stay for awhile
Someday before I die

But today the willows call my name
In the pages of a book—I'm far away
Sweet pines and flowers on the air
There's a little bit of someday right here

Playin' on the grand ol' stage
Finally on my way
But I'm happy to be here
Singing now for you

There's a little bit of someday right here
Today the willows call my name
In the pages of a book—I'm far away
Sweet pines and flowers on the air
There's a little bit of someday right here

Today the willows call my name
In the pages of a book—I'm so far away
Sweet pines and flowers on the air
There's a little bit of someday right here
There's a little bit of someday right here
