

All the Love: Music and lyrics by Brittany Jean

We made a promise early doors
Your heart for mine and mine for yours
Now we're in The Neverend
Where we will never set it in stone
I won't ask more than you are able
Tonight let's tarry at the table
And dream until the night grows young
Let every song be sung and known

All the love I have—the atlas and the photographs
All the days I live—where I go and where I've been
All the words I own—home and harbor
All the love I have is yours

There are no ties to bind us down
We'll say goodbye to this old town
I'll take care o' you take care o' me
From the menagerie, we'll fly
Crossing hearts and county lines
I claim this ground for me and mine
We'll begin again—so steal away
Find me in the flower fields and rye

All the love I have—the atlas and the photographs
All the days I live—where I go and where I've been
All the words I own—home and harbor
All the love I have

Today and everyday
My love for you remains
Today and everyday
I will always...

All the love I have—the atlas and the photographs
All the days I live—where I go and where I've been
All the words I own—home and harbor
All the love I have is yours
All the love I have
All the love I have is yours
