

Goodbye: Music and lyrics by Brittany Jean

Said you don't know me anymore
You charged into me blindly
And you didn't even notice the blood you drew
But I haven't changed
You spoke to me like a slamming door
When you could have just asked me
You'd see that it was me, the girl you knew
With growing that came with age

I don't know what brought this on
All of a sudden we were gone
'Cause I refused
To be a pawn
I know you won't apologize
And I can't take the hostile lies
So I guess this is goodbye

I won't hold a grudge
This will be over from today
But you should know
What you said broke me down
You'll never budge
It doesn't matter what I'd say
But it's hard to just let go
Of a friend I hoped would always be around

I don't know what brought this on
All of a sudden we were gone
'Cause I refused
To be a pawn
I know you won't apologize
And I can't take the hostile lies
So I guess this is goodbye

I'll try to remember
Everything before December
And keep my memories of you there

I don't know what brought this on
All of a sudden we were gone
'Cause I refused
To be a pawn
I know you won't apologize
And I can't take the hostile lies

So I guess this is goodbye
I don't know what brought this on
All of a sudden we were gone
'Cause I refused
To be a pawn
I know you won't apologize
And I can't take the hostile lies
So I guess this is goodbye

I know you won't apologize
And I can't take the hostile lies
So I guess... goodbye
Good... goodbye...
